

Nominal possessors and verbal plurality in Seri

Jérémy Pasquereau, Carolyn O'Meara & Matthew Baerman

(Poitiers, Surrey & Mexico-City)

The plural forms of inalienably possessed nouns in Seri appear to be sensitive to the number both of possessor and possessum. However, there are compelling arguments against treating this as agreement with two distinct arguments. Instead, it belongs to the system of pluractionality also found on verbs, in which number markers are stacked along a cline of increasing plurality.